

Desiring Canada

Desiring Canada - 'Desiring Canada offers a new and useful way to think about how our identifications with Canada are produced through popular cultural texts, artefacts, and performances that are state-mediated. Desiring Canada: CBC Contests, Hockey Violence, and Other Stately Pleasures. What do Tim Hortons, Hockey Night in Canada, and Rick Mercer have in common? Each is a popular symbol of Canadian identity, seen across the country - and beyond - on television and in other forms of media. But whose definition of 'Canadian' do they represent?' 'Desiring Canada takes an interesting and informative look at several important spheres of cultural-identity consumption. Offering wonderful insight and great theoretical depth, it is a fine contribution to scholarship that will be of interest to a number of academic fields.' 'Desiring Canada offers a new and useful way to think about how our identifications with Canada are produced through popular cultural texts, artefacts, and performances that are state-mediated.'